The attendance at the Ladies of Clan Gordon fair last evening more than made up for the small crowd on the first night. During the first part of the evening the hall was packed, a little over forty dollars in ten-cent pieces being taken in at the door. The evening's programme was very enjoyable and this evening the programme will consist of a piano duet by Mrs. Barrett and Christina Reid, followed by a farce entitled "The Trouble at Satterlee's." The fair will close this evening and a record attendance is looked for.

"The Ragged Messenger," in which Creston Clarke is this season winning a most gratifying success, is a perfect marvel of the playwright's craft. Many of its situations are startling in the extreme; its dialogue is crisp and at times prophetic, dealing as it does with the gigantic problems of the present day, and the atmosphere that permeates it is charged with all the portents of a terrible storm, when suddenly it clears and a rainbow appears on the horizon of the lives of the principal characters. No more intensely absorbing play has ever been presented. "The Ragged Messenger" will be the attraction at the opera house tonight.
